- sensation of the North sightseeing in the Shifting Dunes Reserve it is a natural sensation of the Słowioski National Park and an unusual tourist attraction. Shifting Dunes are situated between Łebsko lake and the sea. They emerged on 130 000 km2 of beaches from accumulation of sand brought by the waves. The sand is dried by the wind and by the sun, blown away by strong winds into the land. This is the process of creation of high dunes which oscillate between 30 and 40 m. The highest of them is Łącka Mountain which is 42 m. The dunes have been moving for centuries and each year they move by 1,2 1,6 m.
